

Fig. S2. Fluorescence based tracking of phytoplankton population density was used to determine when the invading species could be added to a steady state population. The invading species was added after the final time point shown (~ 410 h).

